- Licensed Psychologist must hold a doctorate degree in psychology and have one year of post-doctoral supervision.

You are entitled to receive information from your therapist about the methods of therapy, the techniques used, the duration of your therapy (if known) and the fee structure. You can seek a second opinion from another therapist or terminate therapy at any time. See the diversion contract for information specific to participation in the program.

In a professional relationship, sexual intimacy is never appropriate and should be reported to the board that licenses, registers, or certifies the licensee, registrant or certificate holder.

I understand that my alcohol and/or drug treatment records are protected under the Federal Confidentiality Regulation, 42 C.F.R., Part 2, governing Confidentiality of Alcohol and Drug Abuse Patient Records. Confidential information cannot be disclosed without my written permission unless otherwise provided for by the regulations.

Generally speaking, the information provided by and to the client during therapy sessions is legally confidential and cannot be released without the client's consent. There are exceptions to this confidentiality, some of which are listed in section 12-43-218 of the Colorado Revised Statutes, as well as other exceptions in Colorado and Federal law. If a legal exception to confidentiality arises during therapy, you will be informed, if feasible. The following are the most common exceptions to confidentiality, but there are more.

- Information regarding the risk of suicide, homicide, grave harm or disability to yourself or others, and threats against a location or entity.
- Information regarding the abuse or neglect of a minor, an elderly person, or an adult considered to be at-risk due to a disability or health impairment. Mental health providers are mandated by law to report any suspicion or known incident of child, elder, or at-risk adult abuse.
- Records subpoenaed by legal authorities.

See the diversion contract and release/waiver forms for information regarding the waivers of confidentiality required for participation in the program.

As therapists, diversion staff will not make recommendations, or testify, to any court concerning custody, parenting issues, or other matters involved in litigation. The clinical relationship between the therapist and the client is the priority of diversion staff and involvement in litigation damages this relationship. By signing this shared disclosure statement you agree not to call us as witnesses in any litigation.

I have read the preceding information and I understand my rights as a client. I understand and consent to participate in therapeutic treatment by the counselors identified in this disclosure as a diversion client.
